GIVE IT A TRY  MP3 / 01

Cheating happens at all levels of education. Students are under intense pressure to perform well on tests, which may make students cheat on tests and exams. They worry that they will flunk, or even have to repeat a class or a year in school.

You might think you can fool around in college, but you are wrong. Take Melissa for example. Melissa is a model student. She has good grades, plays on the school tennis team, tutors elementary students, and is a member of the International Student Association. However, in a few weeks she'll take finals. If she fails, she can't graduate. Even the best students face pressure during their final exams.

Students may feel a lot of anxiety around exam time. A certain degree of test anxiety is normal and may even help students prepare more effectively. Too much anxiety, however, can affect performance negatively. Students must try to find ways to reduce their nervousness.

Students often also try to remember everything for their tests the night before. Staying up late and trying to cram as much as possible is another bad habit that hurts more than it helps when it comes to taking tests. These kinds of problems could potentially ruin your grade. For example, with some multiple choice tests, it's quite easy to lose track of the answers and make a simple, but costly mistake. It's always important to be well-rested and prepared while taking any exam.

IV. 聽力測驗：短文聽解 MP3 / 07

Instruction: Look at the following pictures and listen to the short talk. Check the correct picture according to the questions.

1. What is the boy's favorite class?

I don't really like school that much, but at least there's one class I really like. My friends and I get to play with different tools and chemicals in the class lab. Our teacher tells us it can be dangerous, but I think it's really fun.

2. Where would this announcement probably be heard?

Attention, customers: Summer is almost over, and school is around the corner. Be sure to shop for all your back-to-school supplies this weekend. The first day of school is only one week away. Send your children to school with everything they need. This weekend only, save 50% on everything in the store.

3. Who is leaving the message?

Hello, this is Mrs. Peters calling. I'd like to talk to you about your son, John. He has been absent for 4 days now, and I'd like to know if he's feeling better. If you'd like, I could have one of his classmates bring over the class work we have been doing. Please let me know what you think. You can call me at 555-2317.

4. What is the man's job?

I get to deal with numbers at my desk all day. When I was a student, I loved math. I am good at math, so this job suits me quite well. The only thing I don't like is that I have to wear a shirt and tie to work every day.

M: I can't believe it!

F: Me, neither. We should have done more research before we came on this trip.

M: I'm so hot, and I have to carry this heavy backpack full of warm clothes!

F: I packed a thick coat and three sweaters because I thought it would be cold!

M: It's really hot here, and I have a thick blanket in my bag!

F: What's that you're wearing?

M: My underwear. These are the only shorts I packed.

F: Ha-ha! I don't know why I'm laughing. At least your legs are cool. I'm wearing ski pants!

Q: Where have the two travelers just arrived?

Question 2

F: Welcome to Live Air. Are you traveling alone today, sir?

M: Yes, I am.

F: And what is your destination?

M: I'm flying to Hong Kong and then to London.

F: May I see your ticket and passport, please?

M: Sure. Here you go.

F: Sir, your passport expires in three months. You need to have at least six months left on your passport to enter the UK.

M: What? Oh, no!

Q: Who is the check-in clerk talking to?

Question 3

M: Here you are. Canary Wharf. That'll be 23 pounds, please.

F: What? 23 pounds? That's over 1,000 NT!

M: I don't know what that means.

F: Can it really be so much? We only went about ten kilometers.

M: Ask any taxi driver around here. That's the correct fare.

F: Oh, dear. Oh, well, I have to pay.

M: When you go back, maybe you should take the bus. It's a lot cheaper.

F: I will. And I'll make sure I do more research on transportation costs before I travel next time. Thank you.

I have lived in many different countries since I was a young boy. I was 8 years old when I lived in the States. We didn't wear any uniforms while we were in class. My school had lots of students so I met a lot of people.

In high school, my family moved to Japan. I was either in class or at the library all day. Classes were much busier than in the states. I didn't have time to do anything except for studying.

I went to college in Europe. My favorite thing then was to go to a coffee shop with classmates and study while drinking coffee. Pierre, my roommate, was always good to talk to.

After I graduated college, I lived in Spain. There I met the most important woman of my life, Analisa. She taught me all the different customs of Spain and how to speak Spanish.

We got married in Barcelona and then moved back to America. We have one daughter, Alyssa. She's very sweet and hardworking. She speaks both English and Spanish at home with me and her mother.

Now our daughter, Alyssa, is all grown up! She loves sharing music with her best friend. They always hang out together and talk about the hottest band and their new album.

Question 1

Sabrina's mom left a message. What does she want her daughter Sabrina to do?

Sabrina, it's Mom. We are going away for three days. I'm sorry I forgot to tell you this morning. You'll need to do your own laundry. It's easy. Just put a half cup of detergent into the washer and press the button. Don't be lazy! See you in three days.

Question 2

Listen to the following short talk. What does Alex's roommate NOT do?

I'm really angry today. When I got home, I found a lot of garbage on the balcony. And it's my roommate's turn to take out the garbage. Now it smells so bad that I have to throw it out right away.

Question 3

Dennis is writing about his day. What did he have to do?

Today was a good day. I only had one thing to do. I didn't have to vacuum or clean the toilet this week since my roommates did yesterday. We had dinner together, so one of us had to wash the dishes. There weren't a lot, so I finished it quickly.

PAGES 118 & 119

GIVE IT A TRY MP3 / 65

Studying in a foreign country is a serious decision. It can be a rewarding experience, but think carefully about how it will fit into your long-term educational and life plans.

Living in a new country and new culture might affect you in ways you don't expect. You may need to make some readjustments when you return home. It's also wise to think about how the move will impact you and also your family.

Think about the cost of education, including the cost of tuition, living expenses, books, and other items. Tuition varies widely from school to school, but it is almost always the biggest single cost that an international student has to face. The sources of financial aid available to international students are limited and highly competitive. Do your homework and apply for as many as possible.

It's likely that other countries won't have food that you are used to eating. Learn as much as you can about the local cuisine and what you'll be able to eat. It might be difficult to find your favorite meal, so try to adjust and find new stuff you would like. Also, you'll need to make sure you have everything before you leave since you won't have the same kind of support as you did back home.

Studying abroad is not for everyone, but if you think you can immerse yourself in a foreign culture for a year or more, the rewards are abundant.

UNIT 10

PAGES 132 & 133

GIVE IT A TRY  MP3 / 73

"How can I have a better relationship with my parents?"

There is no certain answer to the question, but first, maybe you can sit down with your parents and tell them that you want to improve your relationship with them and that you are willing to do everything in your power to make it work. See what you can do about having family nights. You could go out for dinner, go bowling, or sit around and play cards all night with your family. Also, try opening up to your parents about your everyday life: friends, school, grades, and broken hearts.

Many families have relationship problems. Parents feel helpless and frustrated when their children get into bad situations. On the other hand, children feel alienated and unfulfilled with their home life and relationships with parents as well.

However, remember that your parents are people, too. They will have some issues that you weren't a part of. It's not always you that your parents will be angry at. Sometimes they have to deal with and solve their own problems. Try not to get too involved, but still be there to support them when they need it. It's a good opportunity to learn how to deal with relationships anywhere. There is no winner in an argument, so instead, aim to work together and come up with a solution for everyone.

Do you have any helpful suggestions to improve a relationship?
